

Twitter Users Flock to Other Platforms as the Elon Musk Era Begins | WIRED

By Amanda Hoover

November 3, 2022

A week before Elon Musk closed his $44 billion Twitter deal, Cassie LaBelle, a writer who is part of a transgender community on Twitter, started a Discord server. “I don’t know if Musk is gonna buy & destroy Twitter or not,” she wrote, but she hoped her server would be an interesting experiment. Beyond that, the server could in time become a safe space for the community of trans people she has cultivated over more than a decade.

[...]

Source: Twitter Users Flock to Other Platforms as the Elon Musk Era Begins | WIRED